CHAPTER ONE

INTRODUCTION

BACKGROUND OF THIS STUDY.

The study of taxation is part of the study of public Finance which is concerned with revenue and expenditure of the government how they are receiving and disbursed and the effects of these operation on the economy since the power to tax is also the power to regulate the economy by the government it can therefore related it or stimulate it.

In modern times therefore, taxation has a dual purchase of:

To realize fund or revenue for the state .

To achieve it's social and economic objectives.

It will be seen from the trend of events in Nigeria today that the revenue gotten from taxation is an immense benefit to the economic development of Nigeria. If the country must develop, it must truly depend on it's internally generated revenue rather than on external sources especially now that the country is too much in debt.
