

ABSTRACT

This study was intended to evaluate the effect of indirect taxation on consumption in Nigeria. This study was guided by the following objectives; To evaluate the effects of indirect taxation on consumption in Nigeria. To identify various forms of indirect taxation imposed in Nigeria and their respective effects. To determine other factors that affect prices of goods and consumption in Nigeria. The study employed the descriptive and explanatory design; questionnaires in addition to library research were applied in order to collect data. Primary and secondary data sources were used and data was analyzed using the chi-square statistical tool at 5% level of significance which was presented in frequency tables and percentage. The respondents under the study were 32 residents of Abuja. The study findings revealed that there is a significant relationship between indirect taxation and consumption in Nigeria; based on the findings from the study, efforts should be made by the Nigerian government and stakeholders in banning or reducing indirect taxation to encourage consumption.
