INTRODUCTION

1.1 BACKGROUND OF THE STUDY

An auditorium is defined as a larger room or building that accommodates an audience for worshipping God, public meetings or performances. A church is a public meeting place. Christianity has mistakenly been defined and described as a religion in which morality and belief system in correspondence to the book are regarded as the basis of the role-playing and problem-solving of the Christian life (Fowler, 2008). Fowler (2008) also states that Christianity refers to the external, on-going reality of the life and work of the living Lord Jesus, who by the spirit provides the dynamic of divine presence and function within receptive Christian individuals and communities.
