PDF - FOREWORD TO THE 10TH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF THE NUCLEAR ANALYTICAL METHODS IN THE LIFE SCIENCES (NAMLS-10) - researchcub.infoThe 10thInternational Conference of the Nuclear Analytical Methods in the Life Sciences(NAMLS-10) was held in the Grand Ballroom of the Swissotel Nai Lert Park,Bangkok, Thailand during 15–20 January 2012. This series of internationalconferences are organized to promote the development and application of nuclearand related analytical methods in the life sciences. Previous NAMLS conferenceswere held in Amsterdam (1967), Bled (1972), Vienna (1978), Gaithersburg (1989),Prague (1993), Beijing (1998), Antalya (2002), Rio de Janeiro (2005), andLisbon (2008). There were 147 participants at NAMLS-10 from 24 countries ofevery continent, near and far. The conference comprised 54 oral presentationsby invited experts as well as speakers of selected contributed papers and of 58posters. Out of a total of 112 contributions, 45 manuscripts have been selectedfor publication in this special issue of the Journal of Radioanalytical andNuclear Chemistry. After the grand opening, the conference began with apresentation of eulogy by Dr. Jan Kucera to Prof. Dr. Julian Hoste for hispioneering contribution to nuclear analytical and radiochemistry. Dr. EmronWasantawisuthi then delivered a statement of appreciation for Dr. Robert Parrin recognition of his 35 years of distinguished contributions to strengthentechnical and scientific capacity building of nuclear analytical chemistry indeveloping countries through the implementation of numerous IAEA projects. Onthis 10th anniversary of NAMLS conferences the International Committee of theNAMLS and Thailand’s NAMLS organizing committee took the opportunity to honorDr. Parr who can be considered as the father of NAMLS. An award was alsopresented to Dr. Moumita Maiti of the Saha Institute of Nuclear Physics, Indiafor the best young nuclear scientist. She presented her work on ‘‘Nuclear andChemical Data for Life Sciences’’. Some of the topics presented covered broadarea of Human and Animal Health, Human and Animal Nutrition, EnvironmentalStudies Agriculture Quality and Metrology Methods and New InstrumentationForensics Fukushima and Nuclear Power. The conference ended by a special speechfrom Dr. Daud Mohamad, Deputy Director General, Department of Nuclear Sciencesand Applications of the IAEA, on ‘‘Atoms for Peace: Meeting Basic Human Needsthrough Science and Technology’’ delivered by Dr. Qu Liang, Director of theJoint IAEA/FAO Division, IAEA. Since NAMLS-10 was held in the Asia Pacificregion, it gave the young professionals in the field an opportunity to attendthe conference. Thanks also to IAEA for the financial assistance which helpedin part the cost for some of the young researchers from every corner of theworld to attend the conference. Poster sessions were also very interesting.Best student oral and poster presentation awards were given. Two committeesreviewed oral presentations, interviewed the authors of posters, and selectedyoung meritorious researchers for the student awards. The organizing committeewishes to thank Prof. Dr. A. Chatt for his kind contribution for the award aswell as to the selection committee. During the 6-day conference, theparticipants from all over the world had a chance to meet and discuss researchof mutual interest. It started during the poolside reception in the evening onthe first day of the conference. The poster sessions also provided a greatchance for young as well as the experts in the area to exchange their ideasextensively. The participants also had a chance to see the traditional Thaicultural heritage during the visit to Floating Market and the Sanctuary ofTruth with hand carving teak house.
